8. Suggested answer: The shark washed up onto the beach at Coney Island, at which point it was already dead. The shark was then taken to Luna Park, where it was left on the ground by the wooden rollercoaster. After that, the shark was taken into the subway and left on the train.

9. Suggested answer: Spectators were very interested in the dead shark because New York City dwellers rarely get the opportunity to see and interact with wildlife up close. The appearance of a wild animal is an exciting and unusual occurrence in the city.

10. Suggested answer: Answers may vary and should be supported by the text. Students may argue that it was wrong to move the shark and take pictures with it because it was disrespectful to the animal and its death. It should have been left undisturbed on the beach where it belonged. Students may also argue that it was not wrong to play with the shark because it was already dead, and because city dwellers rarely have the chance to interact with wildlife, so their curiosity was understandable.
